SELECT STORY.

ALL'S WELL THAT ENDS WELL.

Mr. Perry was an old bachelor and Miss Briggs was an old maid. He lived in the brick house on the hill, and she in the cottage opposite, and they were mortal enemies. He despised her because she kept two cats and a canary, and she loathed him for his affection for a huge mastiff and an old knock-kneed horse.

"Why on earth the man don't try to get a decent horse is more than I can imagine!" she would say, as she plodded up to the door. "I believe that he is too mean and miserly to buy one."

Miss Briggs would have hardly felt pleased had she known that Mr. Perry rode back and forward on this worn-out piece of horseflesh for the purpose of annoying her.

They never spoke, but yet they managed to keep up a perfect warfare, by disagreeable manners and wrathful glances.

She sat hour after hour beneath the canary bird in the window, with her cat perched upon the sill and her knitting in her hand, throwing glances of scorn to the opposite side where he with cigar and newspaper received and paid them with interest.

His detestable dog came over and ran through her garden, destroying all her beautiful tulips and hyacinths and she gave him a hot bath which sent him howling to his master, and when said master remonstrated, sent word that she would treat him worse next time.

Her little red cow broke through his enclosure and devoured his turnips and cabbages, and he led her home and informed Miss Briggs that a second offence would give her a comfortable pasture in the pound.

For two years they had lived and fought, and no one could bring about peace between them. It was a pity, the neighbors all said, for Miss Briggs was a dear little soul and there was not a finer man in the country than Mr. Perry.

"Julia, my love," said Mrs. Perkins one afternoon, as she entered the cozy parlor. "I am going to have a party, and I want you to come down in the afternoon to tea and remain during the evening."

"Will that old bach over the way be there?"

"Mr. Perry? Oh, yes! We could not get along without him."

"Then that settles the matter. I sha'n't go."

"Now, Julia, don't be so foolish! If you remain at home he will think that you are afraid of him."

Miss Briggs thought the matter over. Well, it would look a little like that, and she would not have him think so for the world—the conceited!

Mrs. Perkins went home, and it was arranged that Miss Briggs was to spend the afternoon and remain for the party.

She was a pretty little woman, and it was always a puzzle to every one why she never married. She had a round rosy face, clear brown eyes, and beautiful hair, and if she was 30 there was not a smarter woman in town.

She stood before the looking-glass in the chamber, and fastened her lace collar over the neck of her dress with a plain gold brooch, and began to think that she looked very well. There was a bright healthy flush upon her cheek, and her eyes were full of light and beauty.

She walked into Mrs. Perkins sitting room, and found her awaiting her with a smiling face. She thought that she must be in a very good humor, but said nothing, allowing the good lady to smile as long and pleasantly as she wished.

She understood it all when supper time came and Mr. Perkins entered followed by Mr. Perry. This was a well laid plan to make the two become friends.

Miss Briggs bit her lips and inwardly vowed that nothing should tempt her to give "that man" her hand in friendship. She hated him and always would.

He was placed directly opposite at the table, and many times forced to pass the biscuits or preserves, and Miss Briggs accepted them, although she declared to Mrs. Perkins after supper that they nearly choked her.

Before evening they were both persuaded to overlook the horse and cow difficulty and be civil, and Miss Briggs was frightened when she found herself talking to him with easy and pleasant familiarity.

The party was a success, and although the sports were generally monopolized by the younger portion, they found room for the old maid and her enemy, and several times they found themselves doing most ridiculous things in the way of paying forfeits.

At the end of the evening Miss Briggs was at the door ready to depart, when he called:

"Miss Briggs, I am going right up your way. Will you ride?"

Would she ride behind that old horse, and beside that detestable man? She was wondering whether she would or not, when Mrs. Perkins came and triumphantly led her out and packed her into the carriage.

It was as dark as pitch, and they had to let the horse go his own way and find it best he could. He did so very well until they reached the cottage, and then he was bewildered.

Mr. Perry spoke, jerked the reins, but to no purpose. He then took out the whip. Whether his natural dislike to that articles or the memories of the indignities he had suffered from the hands of the owner of the cottage overcame him, it is hard to decide, but at all events he kicked up his heels, ran a few yards and fell, overturning the buggy and its precious contents.

Miss Briggs was up in a moment, unharmed, but Mr. Perry was silent as the grave. She ran shouting through the darkness until Mr. Perry's "help" came with a lantern to her assistance.

They found the poor man half dead beneath the carriage, and while Dan was at work, Miss Briggs ran home for her own servant. After much hard labor they succeeded in extricating him from the wreck; but he was senseless, and they bore him home and sent for the doctor. Upon examination they found his leg to be broken, and thus Miss Briggs' enemy was at her mercy.

The days and weeks that followed were dreadful ones to the sufferer, but Miss Briggs never left him. Day and night she stood beside him, and her plump hands administered to every want.

He forgot the cow and turnips. He forgot the cat and the canary. He only saw a little patient woman, with a pretty face, trim figure and tender hands, and—would you believe it?—he fell in love with her.

How could he help it? She had sat by him through the dreary days of pain, she had brought him her preserves and nice invigorating cordials. She had, in all probability, saved his life.

What could he do? Nothing but fall in love.

"Miss Briggs!" he said, one day when he was able to sit up.

"Well, Mr. Perry?"

"You have been very good to me, and I feel as though I owe you a great deal."

"There! now stop just were you are. You owe me nothing."

"But would you mind if I trespassed a little farther on your good nature?"

"Not at all."

"Well, Miss Briggs will you take me in charge for the rest of my life!"

"What?"

"Will you marry me? There!"

Miss Briggs blushed, and her answer came thus:

"I will marry you."

There was a wedding in the church a few weeks later, and Mrs. Perkins prepared the wedding supper.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry live in the brick house, and the cottage is rented to a young man and his wife, to whom Mrs. Perry bequeathed her cats and the canary.

The mastiff and the knock-kneed old horse are with their forefathers.

The Merits of the Vestibule Car.

[From the New York Times, May 23d, 1888.]

Speaking of the injunction in favor of the Pullman Company, restraining the Wagner people from the use of the vestibule attachment, a prominent railroad man said the other day: "The vestibule attachment is one of the most important improvements of the age toward the perfection of absolute comfort in passenger car construction. Several years ago, when the dining car was introduced and the practice of preparing and serving meals on railway trains inaugurated, it was found that timid people, especially ladies and invalids, experienced great difficulty in passing from their seats in the sleeper to the dining car when the train was running at a high rate of speed. The open platforms between the cars formed a gulf over which they feared to attempt passage in fine weather and which in wind or storm, or both, was impassable to people with delicate constitutions. If the dining car system was to be a success, this objection must be overcome, and the Pullman people set themselves the task of bridging the chasm. In order to accomplish this end they evolved and developed the idea of the vestibule, and in bringing it into successful usage the railway companies, as well as their patrons, find that the original difficulty has not only been completely overcome, but that a great many other marked advantages have been secured in the introduction of the vestibule. One striking feature is the additional strength created and distributed over the entire train by the close fitting of the coaches to one another and the consequently increased power to withstand the shock of a collision. Telescoping is hardly possible in a well-equipped vestibule train, from the simple fact that the steel frames arrest the force which would drive one car into another. The steadier motion with which the closely-united factors of the train are endowed will be readily recognized as a most beneficial result. This steadiness is noticeable at once, but particularly perceptible to the occupants of upper berths or those who, having tried to read or write in the ordinary car, undertake to do so in a vestibule train. The vestibules, beside protecting the passengers in passing from end to end of the train, serve the purpose of storm doors to a residence, and prevent the sudden drafts which the opening of an ordinary car door always creates. Another feature, which is prominent from a social standpoint, is the deadening of the noise made by the rapid revolution of the wheels over the rails, so that conversation may be carried on without in any way straining the voice.

"The constructors of these cars 'builded wiser than they knew,' and succeeded in abolishing many of the petty annoyances that beset the railway traveler, even on the best equipped roads."

"These cars," he continued, "are as far superior to the ordinary coach as the Pullman is to the old-fashioned passenger car. They enhance in a great degree the pleasure and comfort of travel, and, as the learned judge remarked in the decision above referred to, they must have proved a startling and successful innovation or a competing company would not have been so prompt in imitating them. The Pennsylvania's New York and Chicago Limited Express was the pioneer vestibule train, and the enormous popularity it has won is the best evidence of public appreciation of its merits."

It is a Curious Fact

That the body is now more susceptible to benefit from medicine than at any other season. Hence the importance of taking Hood's Sarsaparilla now, when it will do you the most good. It is really wonderful for purifying and enriching the blood, creating an appetite, and giving a healthy tone to the whole system. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla, which is peculiar to itself.

John L. Sullivan has purchased a one third share in John B. Dorris' circus and will accompany the show on its summer tour of the United States, starting about June 1st.

A Pointer for Drummers.

Two fresh New York drummers had an experience on an Erie train at Carrollton, Pa., recently not soon to be forgotten. They were dressed like swells, and saw two extremely pretty girls get on the train at a way station. The seat behind the girls was vacant, and the drummers quickly got into it. They went to work at once. The girls affected not to notice the mashers. The attention of every passenger was directed to the young men.

Becoming bolder, they leaned over the back of the seat and whispered to the young women. One girl was a tall and well-formed blonde, with hair the tint of a June sunset. The other a bewitching brunette with bangs, was short, stout, and full of animal life. Vainly did the drummers play their best cards. The game refused to be bagged. Just as the situation was becoming unendurable a uniformed trainman popped his head into the car and sang out: "Carrollton! Change for Bradford."

With flushed faces and eyes that sparkled with indignation the young women jumped to their feet. The drummers jumped up, too. The blonde turned, and, in a tone heard all over the car, said: "I hope I never will have to ride in front of two such fools again."

Out on the long station platform a short and athletic young man was waiting. One of the young ladies kissed him. Then there was a whispered consultation. The athletic young man left the ladies and entered the car. Addressing himself to the mashers, he said:

"A gentleman wants to see you outside."

"We have no business here, fellow," languidly lisped one of the fellows.

"Well, then, if you will not go out I will do the business up right here."

And he did. His two fists flew out like lightning. The claret was drawn from the noses of both of the dudes, blood scattered over their gay low-cut waistcoats, and a dark spot began to form under two eyes. The train pulled out, the athletic young man jumped off amid the cheers of the passengers, and the drummers slunk into the smoking car and washed their faces.

The athletic young man was Eddie Boyle, who keeps a hotel and store at Carrollton. The brunette was his wife, the blonde his sister.

A Long Look Ahead.

They were sitting together in the warm parlor, saying little but thinking much. But lovers do not need to say much to be companionable.

The little clock on the mantle for a considerable time had been the only speaker. Its tick, tick, tick, seemed to the youth to say, kiss her, kiss her, kiss her. To the maiden it said leap year, leap year, and its reiteration of this phrase moved the maid to break the silence!

"How funny some people are," she said.

"Funny?"

"Yes, some people who are going to be married?"

"Oh!"

"Yes; some want to be married in a balloon, some on the middle arch of a bridge, some in a boat, some in a railroad train, some on horseback, some on the edge of a precipice, some down in a coal mine—"

"Yes, I have noticed it."

"What is their object, I wonder?"

"Marriage, of course."

"But I mean their object in getting married out of the usual way."

"Well, I'll tell you what I think. They get married in this way so they can tell their children and their grandchildren they were married under peculiar circumstances, as, for instance, 'your mother and me, children, were married in a coal mine,' or, 'your grandmother and me, children, were married in a balloon.'"

"I'll bet that's just the reason," said the maiden.

"Of course it is the reason."

There was a pause. Then the maiden with a glowing cheek said:

"I've been thinking, John—"

"Yes?" he said, interrogatively.

"I've been think how funny it would be—" (a pause and a deeper blush.)

"Well, Bella, you've been thinking what?"

"I've been thinking how funny it would be if—"

"Yes."

"If when the subject of marriage comes up thirty or forty years hence you could point to me and say: Why children, your grandmother proposed to me in leap year and we were married a few weeks after."

John is very busy these days furnishing a nice little cottage and Bella is superintending the making of her wedding dress.—Boston Courier.

Essential to Health.

The value of the phosphate of lime to the human system is everywhere acknowledged by the highest scientific authorities. This substance is found in wheat and other cereals, and constitutes the vital or nutritive element therein. Indeed, it may be truly said to be the essential and vitalizing constituent of all grains. If grains are deprived of their phosphate, their life-sustaining properties are withdrawn in the same proportion. It is a well-known fact that fine white flour is deprived of a large portion of the phosphates in the process of bolting, and that such flower alone will not sustain life. It was a happy idea of Prof. Horsford to restore life-sustaining substances through the medium of baking powder, and his famous preparation has proved one of the most useful gifts which science has made to mankind. It contains the nutritious and strength-giving phosphates, and its use is positively beneficial to health. It makes biscuit, bread, gems, rolls and other articles that are far more light, white and wholesome than it is possible to produce by any other process. The virtues possessed by this preparation should commend it to all careful and economical housekeepers. In a report on the relative value of the various baking powders, Prof. Chas. A. Doremus, of the Bellevue Hospital Medical College, says: "Unless a phosphate form one of the ingredients of a baking powder, there is no residue left of nutritive value."

This idea of Prof. Horsford is applied in the manufacture of the famous Rumford Yeast Powder.

A Brilliant Oratorical Effort of the Ex-State Chairman.

SPEECH OF W. U. HENSEL BEFORE THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION AT HARRISBURG MONDAY MAY 23, 1888

GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION—It is not to be wondered at the assemblage of a convention of the second largest body of the democracy of the country should be awaited with attention and its proceedings viewed with concern. The action here of those who claim to speak with single voice giving forth no uncertain sound for nearly half a million free electors is bound to be weighty with consequence. [Applause.]

This day, it is already forshadowed, is to mark a new birth for the democratic party of Pennsylvania.—[Applause.]

For the first time within the political generation of those even older than the most of us, our state democracy ranges it self in line with the organization of the entire country on what has at last come to be the supreme issue of political discussion. [Great applause.] With face to the front and back to the past, we are about to declare for emancipation from that onerous, destructive and misdirected system of federal taxation which has contributed to destroy the external commerce of the United States; to limit the sale of American manufactures, to reduce the earnings of labor by frequent suspensions, lockouts and strikes; to produce trusts for the control of the home market at the expense of the people; to hinder the farmer in the sale of his products; to increase the cost of industrial productions; to enhance the price of necessaries; to create a dangerous surplus in the federal treasury, and to drive the American flag from the seas. [Applause and cheers.]

Whatever apprenension timid men may feel at the results of a bold declaration on living questions, must be allayed by the reflections that a party recently distracted with doubt, has been united in support of that courageous leader [Applause] whose clear voice rang out to congress and the country the challenge to discussion. As in the days of Jefferson, and of Jackson, and of Tilden [Applause], commanding statesmanship was joined with splendid party leadership and discipline, crowned with enduring victory, so today our candidate is our captain. High above the late confusion of tongues, there is no voice for but one nominee and for one platform—the message of last December and the renomination of Grover Cleveland. [Tremendous Applause.]

Laggard as they might have been in the past, henceforth the democracy of Pennsylvania will be to the front, with banners high advanced in the de man! for revenue reform by a thorough revision of the tariff. [Applause]. Upon the basis of such measures as the concurrent will and wisdom of the executive and legislative representatives of the party have determined, we will fearlessly preach this faith in the sheep pastures of Pennsylvania and on the threshing floors, on the cinder banks and in the workshops; where the shuttle flies and mill wheel turns in factory town; where the woodman's ax rings through the virgin forest of the West Branch valley, under the shadow of the coal breaker, and where the fire flag floats in the oil fields of western Pennsylvania. [Applause.]

With a clear, distinct and unequivocal policy, alike freed from the delusions of the doctrinaire and from the thrall of the monopolist, the democracy of Pennsylvania keeping step with the music of a party moving in unbroken files, may fairly hope to retrieve its fortunes and to recruit its ranks.

Even if it emerge from the conflict at first without victory it will survive without dishonorable concession or disgraceful compromise. [Applause.] In the sober second thought of the American people there can be no doubt; sooner or later must come conversion to a well proved system of economy under which the alert mechanical genius of our country shall sell the products of its handicraft in the open marts of all the earth; then the manufactures shall be relieved from the vicissitudes of fitful stimulation and depression, languishing agriculture will lift her drooping head and the spirit of restored American commerce will raise aloft its flag in every seaport and spread its sails to every breeze that blows the wide world round. [Prolonged applause.]

Happily for the topic and the time, public attention is not to be diverted nor political passion and prejudice excited by appeals to dead issues and attempts to fan extinct embers to fresh glow. Three years of democratic administration have answered the misrepresentation of nearly a generation. It has silenced the doubts and derision of those who attempted to deceive the country in believing that the party, descended in unbroken succession from the fathers of the republic, was incapable of administering its functions and of directing its destinies. [Applause.]

Every department of the federal government in democratic control has been administered with increased efficiency at decreased cost. [Applause.] The treasury has been managed with sagacity and skill that command the wonder and admiration of the world's financiers. [Applause.] The internal revenue has been collected with fidelity and economy and without needless harrassment or oppression. Law and justice have been administered without fear, favor or affection. The civility of the nation has been maintained without needless embroilment or disturbance of those peaceful international relations which are the glory of modern civilization. [Applause.] The postal department is the servant of the people and not the spoil of the placeman and the booty of official thieves. The public lands have been not only safe from further spoliation, but reclaimed from the grasp of forfeited grant and tainted title. Pensions have been paid to deserving soldiers with unstinted liberalty and unprecedented promptitude. A navy is is being built instead of its appropriations being stolen. [Applause.] The black man is protected in his rights and the red man is clothed, educated and fed instead of being killed or robbed. The lash of the taskmaster stings no deeper in the cotton fields of Georgia than in the iron mills of Braddock. [Great Applause and cries "Hurrah for Scott."] Elections are as fair in Baton Rouge as in Lancaster county, and the franchise is as free in South Carolina as in Rhode Island. Genuine civil service reform has been maintained and advanced but democratic capacit for honest and efficient discharge of public trust has been either undiscovered or unemployed. The veto power has been exercised with a vigor and frequency unknown in its history but they who have sought to gainsay the wisdom of its use have broken their teeth upon the edges of the file. [Laughter and applause.] To-day the democracy welcomes with fearless challenge to the presidental contest of 1888 the presidental combatants of 1884. [Applause.]

Well may we, assembled as the representatives of the party in the commonwealth, turn with profitable contrast to the aspect of political conduct presented here. The people of Pennsylvania in the broken pledges of a faithless administration have learned that the promise to enforce the fundamental law of the state was to be kept to the ear and broken to the hope. The wise revision of inadequate blunders if not more serious crimes. Corporate encroashment has been unchecked. Flagrant violations of law are unpunished and the state treasury is menanced with grievous depletion in the relief of combined capital from its just share of taxation.

In boldly formulating these issues of federal and state concern in the selection of pure and capable candidates; in delegating the authority of this convention to fit an intelligent representative to the higher council of the party, in the participation here of labor's representatives with gentlemen whose fortunes are linked inseparably with all the varied interests of the state of largest magnitude—is there not the promise of a democracy for Pennsylvania reorganized to-day that must be triumphant to-morrow?

I thank you sincerely for this high mark of your favor. To me personally it is grateful because it is another of many bestowals of kindness at your hands, which if undeserved have at least not been unappreciated. [Applause.] But of much more significance that any individual token is the fact that it comes to me only as a representative of that large number of the young democracy of the state who have followed with unfaltering footsteps and unfailing confidence the leaders whose counsel is yet here supreme.

No man is excluded from followship here save them who exclude themselves. The party that is to big to wear the collar of any individual buckled around the neck of its organization is yet too small to spare from its ranks a single faithful follower of its principles. Harmony is to be followed by aggression and across the sky of recent storm there bends the bow of radiant promise. [Prolonged applause.]

Big Treasure Vault.

THE LARGEST CONSTRUCTION OF THE KIND IN THE WORLD.

The one-hundred-million vault is the largest construction of the kind in the world, writes the Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Times. As it now appears it looks like a modern improvement on the dungeons of the old inquisition in Spain, Italy and Austria. Descending into depths of the massive foundations of the Treasury, about thirty feet below the surface of the public throughfares outside and crossing a dingy, dimly-lighted bare apartment, a great square of steel, standing partly open in a steel casement, suggests the entrance to the new vault. The door, about eight feet high and six feet wide, is six inches thick and weighs five thousand pounds, or two and one-half net tons. To move it on its tracks into its steel casing requires the desperate exertions of five men. A mechanical device is now being constructed to lessen the demand for this amount of muscle in handling the ponderous portal. A lock one foot in diameter, resembling the highly polished bottom of a dish-pan and operated through a combination of the most delicate and intricate mechanical appliances by means of a key, throws the powerful bolts into the slots in the frame, and a time-lock holds them there against any thing short of blowing up the building by the roots until the hour fixed for the morning rounds of the official custodian of the vaults.

Passing through the jaws of this monster of human contrivance against burglarious attempts, the chill, damp air and inky darkness suggest the strength and insolation of this vast treasure-box. It is 85 feet long, 50 feet wide, and 12 feet high, surrounded by massive walls of masonry and brick five feet thick. In the dim light of a candle the weird lattice work of interlacing bars of steel which form the sixteen cells, each ten by twenty feet, may be vaguely seen. Around the inner cage leads a narrow corridor, where the custodian of the vault may make his rounds of inspection. Upon a traverse central corridor the cells open. Each door is fitted with an ingenious device for fastening, which will not catch until the door is entirely shut and the key removed.

Each of these cells will hold six and a half million dollars, or two hundred tons of silver dollars, or a grand total of 3,000 net tons, equal to 100,000,000 silver dollars. If the corridors were used for storage this aggregate could be increased to $128,000. Some practical idea of the extent of this treasure may be formed when it is realized that to transport it would require at least 1,800 wagons, which would extend in a continous line from the new city hall of Philadelphia to Norristown, or a train of cars which would extend from the Broad-street station to Fifty-second street.

Crop Prospect.

The following summary of the crop prospects in this state for the present year has been prepared by Secretary Thomas J. Edge, of the state board of agriculture.

Wheat—The average of wheat this year has been somewhat increased and the condition of the crop is far above that of the same time last year. A fair average crop may be expected. As a rule the percentage of loss by freezing is low. In eastern Pennsylvania the crop will be above the average of the past ten years.

Corn—The average of corn has been slightly increased, probably 5 per cent. The season has not been favorable to the crop. Owing to cold weather much has failed to sprout, thus compelling replanting. Less than usual loss from bad seed has been reported.

Oats—There has been but little change in the area sown with oats, but indications favor a fair crop.

Potatoes—There will be a slight increase in the average of the potato crop, although last year's low prices discouraged many.

Fruit—The indications previous to last week's frost pointed to a large crop, but it is now impossible to indicate what the outcome will be until the result of the cold snap shall have been heard from. Considerable damage has been done.

The Columbian.

G. E. Elwell, J. K. Bittenbender., } Editors.

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

FRIDAY, JUNE 1, 1888.

Blaine has positively declined to permit the use of his name as a candidate for President.

There is no doubt but that Governor Beaver will appoint a republican as President judge to fill the vacancy caused by Judge Elwell's resignation. He will hold office from August 1st. until the first Monday in January, and at the fall election a Judge will be elected for the full term of ten years. The indications are that H. M. Hinckley Esq. of Danville will be appointed.

The changes of time of holding delegate election and convention should be borne in mind. The time has been changed three times in three years, and so the action of last year's convention was lost sight of, and cards have been circulated by candidates with the wrong date on. The correct time for delegate election is August 11th. and the date of the convention is August 14th.

Lycoming county democrats are not hard to please if you give them the whole world. They have the senator for this district, though in all honesty and fairness Columbia county was entitled to it. At the recent state convention the delegation from this county asked for one of its number a place on the committee on resolutions, but Lycoming county declined to grant their request, and put one of their own men in. It amounts to nothing in itself, more than to show the spirit of greed and unfairness. One of these days Columbia county may get tired of furnishing the majorities while other counties gobble up the offices.

B. FRANK ZARR ESQ.

It is with pleasure that we announce this week the name of B. Frank Zarr Esq, as a candidate for representative. He has consented to enter the political arena after urgent solicitation on the part of his many friends. Having consented, he wants to be elected, and his campaign will be vigorously prosecuted. He needs no introduction to the people of Columbia county. He filled the office of Prothonotary for six years with great credit to himself, and satisfaction to the people. He is a lawyer of ability, a citizen of good repute among his fellow citizens, a man of integrity, sobriety, honesty, industry and intelligence. That is the kind of men Columbia county should send to the legislature.

A New Auditor-General.

On Saturday evening Governor Beaver appointed Colonel Thomas McCamant auditor general, to succeed the late A. Wilson Norris, who died last week. Mr. McCamant's name has been prominently mentioned for the place ever since the death of the late auditor general and his appointment has been urged by his numerous friends all over the state. In 1886 he was a candidate for the nomination for auditor general, and had the support of a large number of delegates but he with-drew before the meeting of the convention which nominated Colonel Norris. The appointment of Mr. McCamant will no doubt make him the nominee of the republican party at the next election. His present term will expire on the first Monday in May, 1889.

The Platform.

DECLARATION OF PRINCIPLES BY THE DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION.

The following is the Democratic platform adopted by the convention last week.

The democratic party of Pennsylvania, by its representatives in convention assembled, declares that revision of the tariff laws is necessary with a view to their simplification, the correction of their incongruities and inequalities, the regulation of duties in such a manner as will put American industry on a firm and permanent basis covering the difference between wages in this country and in foreign countries, the abolition of taxes on raw materials for manufacturers, and the relief of the people from useless and onerous taxes and from extortion by trusts and monopolies controlling the prices of the common necessaries of life. That to this end and that labor may be the more effectually protected in the enjoyments of its earnings and in steadiness and continuity of employment we give our most hearty and emphatic indorsements to the recommendations of President Cleveland's last annual message to Congress and as in line with the principles laid down in that message we commend to Congress the prompt adoption of the revenue bill reported from the committee of ways and means and urge the Democratic representatives in Congress from this State to give it their earnest and undivided support.

That the public lands are the common heritage of the people and must be reserved for actual settlement by citizens of the United States; that no further grants should be made to aliens on any account whatsoever, and that the policy of the Republican party, which has permitted the acquisition of title to vast areas by foreigners as well as fraudulent entries for speculative purposes, deserves the severest condemnation, and that the courage and fidelity of the Democratic national administration in restoring to the public domain many millions of acres of land, forfeited under the terms of grants made by Congress, merit the approval and gratitude of the people.

That the surplus in the Federal Treasury should be applied to the reduction of the principal and interest of the public debt; that the express authority should be given to the President by Congress to purchase United States bonds in advance of their maturity until such surplus shall have been exhausted and that all schemes to deplete the Treasury by which private interests rather than the public good would be subserved and which are pressed upon Congress by lobbyists, who are to receive a large share of appropriations to be made in pursuance of such schemes, are to be deprecated and condemned as erroneous in principle and corrupting in tendency.

That the country is to be congratulated upon the maintenance of the dignity of the government abroad and of peace and tranquility at home under the wise and patriotic administration of President Cleveland.

The delegation this day chosen to represent the Democratic party of Pennsylvania in the Democratic National Convention, called to meet at St. Louis June 5, is hereby instructed to cast its united vote for the renomination of the president.

That the large annual appropriations for pensions, now exceeding the entire cost of the Federal Government before the civil war, are due to the fact that a Democratic Congress passed the arrearage of pension bill; that the pensions paid under the present Democratic administration almost double the amount those paid under Republican administration, and that the Democratic party favors a just and proper pension act which shall do ample justice to all deserving volunteer soldiers and sailors of the United States now living, and to the widows and orphans of such as have died from causes traceable to their service under the flag of their country.

That the decrease in the number of farms containing less than two hundred acres, the increase in the same containing more than one thousand acres and the consequent decrease in the number of independent farmers and the increase in the number of tenant farmers show an alarming tendency toward a centralization of land titles in the hands of speculative capitalists due to systems of Federal and State taxation which bear in disproportioned severity upon agriculture, and which must be corrected if the actual operative farmer is not to become a helpless dependent.

That the Republican party is justly responsible for the failure of the late Legislature to give relief to the tax-payers by the enactment of an equitable and judicious revenue law, and that the scandal connected with failure of the revenue bill to become a law should work a forfeiture of all claims of that party to legislate for the people of the Commonwealth.

That the present State administration is to be condemned for its failure to enforce the provisions of the Constitution against the consolidation of corporations, and the action of the last Republican Legislature in the defeat of the bill for the relief of producers and refiners of oil known as the Billingsley bill was in the interests of monopoly and opposed to the interests of the people of that large section of the State for whose relief the bill was intended.

That the Democratic party sympathizes with the oppressed of all nations, and sends greeting to the patriotic supporters of Parnell, Gladstone and Davitt in their efforts to establish home rule for Ireland.

That while the material benefits which this country has received from immigration are not to be disputed, the importation of foreign labor under contract and the landing of foreign paupers and criminals on American soil should be strictly and effectually prohibited.

That it is recommended to the delegation this day chosen to the Democratic National Convention that when two-thirds of the delegation so agree its vote shall be cast as a unit on all matters submitted to the convention.

That we denounce the prevalent abuse of corporate power, the formation and operation of trusts, combinations and monopolies, all of which interfere with and limit the natural and inalienable rights of the individual, and we pledge ourselves to secure remedies and to apply the same with due regard for all interests of the community.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, May 28st, 1888.

St. Louis is the Mecca toward which the eyes of all good democrats are now turning. Next week when the democratic convention meets there, it will only have to ratify the choice of the party, long since made, of a candidate for the presidency; to formally accept and adopt the platform already mapped out by Mr. Cleveland's last annual message to Congress, and to select a candidate for Vice President, on the ticket with Mr. Cleveland. The only thing about the whole programme about which there is even the slightest particle of doubt, is the last, and it is more than probable that Mr. Cleveland will signify his preference for a running mate before the convention meets, thus removing all doubt, for the convention will take pleasure in nominating the man for whom he expresses a preference, and it is only right that they should, for has he not proven himself the savior of the democratic party? Aye, and more. He has restored the party to its old time Andrew Jackson aggressiveness; for the first time in many years the party starts a presidental campaign by a brilliant charge on the enemy's picket line, which has been forced in with such a rush that the main army have been compelled to beat a retreat, which has so far been a very orderly one, but 'ere the ides of November it will have become a rout. All this has been brought about by one courageous individual, his name is Grover Cleveland. He has given the country a clean, honest administration, and the only reason that he has not accomplished more, is that he has been hampered by a republican Senate, but this time it is to be a clean sweep and from the 4th of March, 1889 the whole government, in all its various branches will be administered by democrats, and in the interests of the whole country, not of a small fraction of it.

The President has approved the act restricting the hours of letter carriers to eight per day. A most excellant law, and like most other good laws it originated with a democrat, Hon. S. S. Cox, of New York.

The demand for Mr. Carlisle's tariff speech is unprecedented. Already 500,000 copies have been ordered, and every mail brings new orders. This is as it should be; it would be a good thing for the democratic party and the career of revenue reform if that speech could be read by every voter in the United States.

The House is making good progress with the regular appropriation bills, having already passed several of them.

The bill creating a department of labor has been passed by both Houses, and only lacks the signature of the President to become a law.

The President approved the act authorizing him to arrange a conference between the United States and the republic of Mexico, Central and South America, Hayti, and San Domingo, and the Empire of Brazil. It is expected that this country will derive much good in the shape of increased commerce, from this conference.

Senator Vest's resolution for an investigation of the meat product of the United States having been passed, the following committee was appointed to make the investigation; Messrs Vest, Plumb, Manderson, Cullon and Coke.

The House judiciary committee have favorably reported the International Copyright bill, recently passed by the Senate.

The bill establishing a department of Agriculture which has already been passed by the House, has been favorably reported to the Senate, and is certain to pass that body at an early day; then the Commissioner of Agriculture will become a member of the Cabinet.

Mr. Fuller's nomination is still "hung up" by the republicans in the Senate.

The Senate finance committee reported adversely the House bill to issue paper fractional currency, but in lieu thereof they reported a bill reducing the fee for postal notes under one dollar to one cent.

Gen. Sheridan has been dangerously ill; he is now somewhat better, though the danger is by no means past. Valvular disease of the heart is his complaint.

The laying of the corner stone of the new Catholic University in this city Thursday was an event of great importance. The impressive ceremonies were conducted by Cardinal Gibbons, assisted by about thirty bishops, and over two hundred priests. The President and his cabinet were present.

The democratic caucus of the House had a long session Saturday night, devoted to the consideration of the report of the democratic members of the ways ann means committee upon the proposed amendments to the Mills tariff bill. Quite a number of minor amendments were agreed to. There is to be another caucus held to-night, when the subject will be finished up.

Appeals will be heard at the Commissioners office in Bloomsburg on the 9th day of June A. D. 1888, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4 p. m., where you can attend if you think proper.

May 25, 1888. C. L. SANDS, Mercantile Appraiser.

TREASURER'S SALE

OF UNSEATED LANDS

IN COLUMBIA COUNTY, PENNA.

By virtue of sundry acts of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, relating to the sale of seated and unseated lands in the county of Columbia, etc., for taxes due and unpaid, I will offer to public sale in the Court House, in the town of Bloomsburg, on at 10 o'clock, a. m. The following described pieces of land, or such part thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount of taxes due and unpaid against the same, and continue the same, from day to day as the same may be found necessary.

TERMS OF SALE.

The amount of taxes and costs must be paid when the land is struck off or the sale may be void and the property put up and resold.

The reduction of the price of the COLUMBIAN to one dollar a year has met with such a hearty and cordial appreciation by the public that we have concluded not to reduce the size of the paper at present. We are giving more for the money than any other newspaper in the county, and as we have said before, this paper will always be as large as any other paper at the same price. Should any one undertake to publish a larger sheet the COLUMBIAN will meet them at every point, and it too will be enlarged.

New Music.

"The Indian Summer Time," a beautiful song and chorus, by Will L. The resignation of Judge Elwell has aroused much talk as to his probable successor. E. R. Ikeler Esq. is spoken of by many as a prominent candidate for the nomination. His name will be announced in due time.

The Sunbury News heard that a man living not a great distance from that place has his two little children, a boy and a girl, go about the country begging money. With the proceeds he has already purchased a $3,200 farm and still has the children on the road begging. If there is any truth in this it is high time the imposition is made public.

The Supreme Court concluded its Philadelphia session on Friday, and met at Harrisburg on Monday. On Friday afternoon a number of decisions were rendered, but none of the cases from this county were among them. It is difficult to understand why the decision of the school board case should be so long delayed. At the argument of the case the indications were that the decision of the lower court would be affirmed.

The trial of the Gardner vs. Steam Company case was a very interesting one, owing to the prominence of the parties, and the amount involved. On Thursday evening the court was filled so that no standing room remained. Such a crowd has not gathered there since the Mollie Maguire trial twelve years ago. The COLUMBIAN is the only paper that printed a full acount of the trial. Last week it filled nearly two columns while other papers contained but a few lines on that subject.

A. E. Cadow vs. D. L. & W. R. R. Co.

The Supreme Court sitting at Harrisburg on Monday filed an opinion in the case of Albert E. Cadow vs. the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western R. R. Co., in which the judgment of the court of this county is reversed. On the morning of January 28th, 1884 as Cadow was going to his work at Lockard's car shops he fell upon the rails of the defendant at the intersection of the railroad with East street, and broke his leg. He brought suit to recover $5,000 damages, alleging that the railroad company was negligent in not keeping the crossing in repair. The case was first tried before arbitrators, and resulted in an award of $4,350. for the plaintiff. From this the defendant appealed, and the case was tried before Judge Elwell in October 1886, and at the close of the plaintiff's testimony a compulsory non-suit was entered. Subsequently the non-suit was stricken off and the case was tried the second time before Judge Dreher in May 1887, who sent the case to the jury, a verdict of $4,500 being the result. The defendant took out a writ of error and the case was argued in the Supreme Court last April, Ikeler & Herring and W. Chrisman being counsel for Cadow, and Col. Freeze and Geo. E. Elwell for the railroad company. The case has excited much interest as the principles involved are important. Cadow could have reached his destination without crossing the tracks in the middle of the street, and the Supreme Court says in deciding in favor of the defendant, that a party cannot recover damage for an injury which by the exercise of reasonable care he might have avoided. This is the end of the case.

The features of the game were the excellent work of Heist, who struck out twelve men, the good support given him by our lightning thrower Hayes, who allowed but one man a steal to base and the fielding of the "ladies' favorite" Shaffer, Hagenbuch, Sylvis and W. Ent, who made a phenomenal catch of a fly ball and excellent throw to first, of what appeared to be a two-bagger. Housel did well in his new position at first. Shaffer led at the bat, making four hits, and was followed closely by Hagenbuch and Hayes. For the visitors Griffin excelled, striking out five men and watching bases very closely; Boyle supported him in a creditable manner his only fault being his inability to throw to bases. The fielding support was good.

Gardner vs. Steam Heat Co.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

Defense opened by Ikeler, Samuel Neyhart called as first witness. Made a partial survey and map of scene of accident. Map produced. Map was made with assistance of Mr. Schoch, who located ditch, etc.

A. Z. Schoch sworn. Is president of the Bloomsburg Steam & Electric Light Company. The trench was put in by his direction and under his supervision. Neyhart's map correct. Located points by measurements made by Jas. Brown and himself at the time the trench was put in.

Cross-examined. Located barrel on map by information given him by David Fisher.

David Fisher sworn. Lives in Bloomsburg. Dug ditch. Put the barrel on mound of earth.

Cross-examined. Barrel stood towards the lower side of the centre of pile of earth. Was not present when barrel was located by surveyor.

A. Z. Schoch recalled. Evidence regarding work, digging of ditch, etc. The east side of the street was passable after the workmen completed their work on the evening of the 30th of September. Street impassable 3 or 4 days before, from the beginning of the work. American District Steam Company did the work and had control from October, 1885 to February, 1886.

Cross-examined. No barrier except dirt thrown out of ditch, and barrel. Employed the American District Steam Company to do work. Obtained permit from council for that company. Company was incorporated as the Bloomsburg Steam & Electric Light Co., paid American District Steam Co. for doing work. Barricades above and below work at 4th and 5th streets were taken down after the bulk of material was placed in the main ditch.

David Fisher recalled. W. Wirts helped dig ditch. Began to dig it about five o'clock p. m., threw dirt on north side. Quit about six o'clock by furnace whistle. Went to engine house for lantern 15 or 20 minutes before six. Got lantern, thought it was a new one Isaiah Ohl cleaned and filled lantern. Took lantern to ditch and put it on a barrel on the pile of dirt, and regulated it so that it gave a good light. Heard of accident about half past eight in the evening. Went from home on Rock street to the ditch. Saw the light from above 4th street, 200 feet distant from ditch. Lantern gave good light. Looked in ditch saw that somebody had been in. Saw V shaped track on the mound of earth.

Cross-examined. Not working for the Steam & Electric Light Co. now. Do ditching when I have work. Lantern should hold its light in a gale, ½ inch wick. Placed lantern with flame parallel with ditch. Had no conversation with Thos. Jones. Barrel did not cast much shadow over ditch. Saw another light, don't remember where.

Mrs. Rebecca Harman sworn. Live on Iron street. Remember the 30th of September, 1886. Wife of P. S. Harman. Remember digging of ditch. Workmen commenced digging about half past four, dug ditch within two feet of outer edge of gutter on west side of street. Threw ground on north side of the ditch to the height of about 3 feet. Saw barrel and lantern. Thought light was as good as a lantern would make. In the evening while in a back room heard a rigging crossing 4th and Iron street, going rapidly. Thought probably lantern was out, and went into front room to light the gas. Heard a crash out at the ditch before gas was lit. Saw light from lantern shining in at window. Went out and saw horse in ditch, Dr. Gardner standing at his horse's head pulling. Heard the doctor say he had seen the light but did not know which side of the street it was for. Said he had driven down Iron street on the morning of the same day and supposed that was the side he was to come down that night. Took a lantern out to him. Geo. Bidleman and Wm. Troup helped to get the horse out with picks and probably a rail.

THURSDAY MORNING.

B. F. Girton, one of the jurymen was excused on account of the critical illness of his daughter, and the trial was continued with eleven jurors by agreement.

Miss L. Jacoby testified to the fact that there was a lantern in the street, and that it was visible for some distance.

N. Chromis testified as to the condition of the street and the presence of a lantern.

Dr. L. A. Shattuck testified to a conversation with Dr. Gardner, in which the latter said that he saw the lantern, but thought it referred to the east side of the street; he also testified to other statements of Dr. Gardner tending to contradict the plaintiff.

The deposition of Col. Knorr was much to the same effect, and contradicted Dr. Gardner's statement on the witness stand of the manner in which the accident occurred.

W. C. Richart drove down Iron street that morning, on his way to Berwick. In the evening he drove up the street after dark and his horse stopped suddenly, he got out to see what was the matter, and found the street partially opened. A lantern was there. Backed out and drove in the alley. Was at ditch while plaintiff's horse was in; asked doctor if he was hurt, he said not. Wanted to go and see some patients. Afterward at his house he told me he was driving in a hurry down the street and saw the light but supposed it was a guard for the main line.

Frank Chromis was with his father that afternoon with team, couldn't get up Iron street, came down about half past six and there was a lantern on the east side, we came down the east side.

Richard Stiles saw Fisher light lantern and put on the barrel, didn't notice it in particular, it wasn't dark yet. Barrel was 4 or 5 feet west of main ditch on a pile of earth, ditch was from variator west towards Harman's house, earth was 2 feet high. Night before the light was 4 or 5 feet from where it was that night. Think west side of street was traveled that day, cross ditch was begun in afternoon.

F. Hendershott was working on pipes that day, finished variator at Harman's before dinner. Saw ditch after supper, main ditch was about filled up, barrel on heap of dirt, near half way between main pipe and gutter, lantern on barrel gave good light so far as I saw. Barrier at Fourth street was taken down before the accident.

William Rawlings got there soon after the accident. Some one said "Dr. did you see a light?" He said, "Yes, but I didn't know which way it was meant for."

John G. Harman was there while horse was in ditch. Heard John Lockard ask plaintiff whether he saw the lantern and he replied that he did, but didn't know which side it was meant for.

A number of other witnesses were called, but no new facts were elicited. At four o'clock in the afternoon Mr. Hinckley began his address to the jury on behalf of the defense. He spoke for an hour and a half and made an able argument. At 7 o'clock in the evening Mr. Scarlet made the closing argument for the plaintiff, talking also for an hour and a half. His speech was a strong one. Court adjourned until Friday morning, when Judge Archbald charged the jury. His charge was highly complimented by all who heard it. The principles of law applicable to the case were very clearly expounded. The jury went out at about 10 o'clock, and at 5 in the afternoon returned a verdict of $15,000 dollars for the plaintiff. The case will be taken to the Supreme court.

Death of Colonel Eli Slifer.

Colonel Eli Slifer died at his home in Lewisburg Saturday night from injuries received on Thursday morning by being thrown from his carriage while driving to his country residence. His horses took fright at the noise of a passing train while he was driving over the Reading railroad bridge. He was state treasurer in 1855-56 and 1857-59, and secretary of the commonwealt in 1861-66, under Governor Curtin.

Wyoming Classis.

The Wyoming Classis of the Reformed church in the United States will convene this (Thursday) evening in the Trinity Reformed church, corner of Third and Iron streets to hold its annual sessions. This Classis was organized in the 29th of June, 1887, by the division of the East Susquehanna Classis in accordance with permission granted by the Synod of the United States. It is the latest organized classis of this Synod and is composed at present of fifteen pastoral charges, lying within the following counties: All of Northumberland, Montour and Columbia, north of the North Branch of the Susquehanna river, Luzerne, Sullivan, Carbon and one congregation at Fayette, Seneca Co., N. Y.

In a classis every pastoral charge is entitled to representation, not only by its pastor, but also by an elder delegated by the congregation or charge, so that if all the ministers and delegated elders attend, it will constitute a body of thirty persons Besides the members, it is expected that several ministers of other classis will be present. Visiting ministers and elders of the Reformed church are constituted advisory members of the classis. The present officers of the classis are: President, Rev. F. K. Levan, of Wilkesbarre, Pa.; Stated Clerk, Rev. S. Sidney Kobler, of Wapwallopen, Pa.; Treasurer, Rev. A. Houtz, of Orangeville, Pa.; Corresponding Secretary, Rev. J. S. Wagner, of Bloomsburg, Pa.; Trustee, Rev J. A. Peters, D. D., of Danville, Pa.

The first session, this evening, will open with divine service in connection with which a sermon will be preached by the retiring president, Rev. F. K. Levan of Wilkesbarre, Pa., after which the classis will proceed to elect officers for the current year. There will be regular business sessions morning and afternoon of each day until all business is transacted. These sessions will be open to all who may desire to attend. The evenings will be devoted to religious services, at which the interests of Sunday school work, Home and Foreign missions, and kindred topics bearing on practical church work will be considered. The Superintendent of the Home Missionary operations of the English portion of the Reformed church, east of the state of Ohio, the Rev. A. C. Whitmer, has signified his intention of being present during a part of the sessions. He will give some interesting talks on the work which he superintends. The services on Sunday evening, it is expected, will be especially interesting and instructive. In addition to addresses by several of the ministers of Classis, there will be an exercise by the members of the missionary society connected with the Trinity Reformed Church.

On Saturday at 2 p. m. there will be divine service preparatory to the Holy Communion, which will be celebrated on Sunday at 10:45 a. m. Members of the Classis will officiate in the pulpits of some of the other churches of this place.

Pennsylvania Reserve Volunteer Corps.

The following circular has been issued: To MEMBERS OF THE PENNA. RESERVE VOLUNTEER CORPS.

COMRADES: The Association of Pennsylvania Reserves for Central Pennsylvania which met at Shickshinny last summer, voted to hold the next annual reunion at Oak Grove, Bloomsburg. The time is fixed for Tuesday and Wednesday, June 26th and 27th, and the reunion will be in the form of a basket picnic. The time agreed upon is the anniversary of the first two battles in which the whole division was engaged as a division. The first day is especially memorable to us from the fact that there for the first time meeting the enemy, we met them unassisted by any other troops and successfully repulsed more than three times our number of the best fighting men of the South. It was a grand beginning to a career of field service of which neither we nor our State has ever had occasion to feel ashamed. Twenty-six years have passed away since then, and twenty-four years have gone by since the remnant of our beloved corps ceased to exist as an army organization. To the list of our noble comrades who gave their life in the service, have been added many who since then have been mustered out of the army of life. And now we are all in the afternoon of our earthly march. In view of this fact and in remembrance of our hearty and compact brotherhood of service we should strive to cherish that fraternity of feeling by meeting together in social and peaceful enjoyment of annual reunions, and bring our wives and children face to face with those, who, shoulder to shoulder, shared our marches, our battles and our bivouacs. Our organization, although central in its title has no limits or boundaries. We readily welcome to membership all Pennsylvania Reserves no matter in what quarter of the globe their lot may be cast. And as in many a hard fought battle we shared with other regiments, as well of Pennsylvania as of other states, in the defeats and triumphs of our cause, so our comradeship knows no distinction of division or state lines of service. We welcome to our camp and social enjoyment of these two days, all veteran soldiers of the army who may wish to meet with us. The place selected is large enough to hold an army and contains all the appointments of a well equipped picnic ground. Its grand old trees and abundance of good water, its dancing hall and graveled walks, its fountains and torch lights and gas lights all assist in affording pleasure; while the opportunity to look again upon a comrade after twenty-five years of separation should be inducement enough to all who can come. Bloomsburg is readily reached by all the leading lines in the State. The Reading (Rupert), the Delaware & Western (cor. Market and 6th) the Pennsylvania Central (Bloom Ferry), and the the Bloomsburg & Sullivan (Main St. and cor. Market and 6th) all have stations here. By these lines the locality is accessible from all points in the State.

When here you may not only enjoy the pleasures of the grove and pic-nic, but you will find in this valley and from the neighboring hills beautiful and varied scenery unsurpassed in any portion of the State. No place of the size anywhere can offer better hotel accommodations and our citizens will be glad to extend the hand of welcome to the old soldier. Excursion rates will be given on all railroads. Tents will be furnished without charge. Hot coffee and bean soup will be furnished free. Registers will be kept on the grounds so that comrades may know what forgotten faces to look for in the camp; and all comrades will be expected to register as soon as they arrive. Comrades intending to be present should as soon as possible notify J. Boyd Robison, Secretary of the committee of arrangements, Bloomsburg, Pa., so that no want of accomodations may mar the harmony and pleasure of the reunion. Any person seeing this invitation is requested to inform our comrades of its contents. Newspapers throughout the State will confer a favor by copying it in their news columns; and Grand Army Posts are requested to have it read at their meetings. By order of the Committee of arrangements.

J. BOYD ROBISON, Secretary. JNO. JAMESON, Chairman.

A Big Timber Land Purchase.

A contract has been signed this week which involves the payment of over $1,-300,000 for 15,000 acres of timber land in Columbia county. This land is at the terminus of a new railroad which has just been finished from Bloomsburg, Pa., to the foot of the North Mountain. The road is twenty-five miles long, opening up a tract of 100,000 acres of virgin timber land, untouched by the axe and hitherto trodden by few men. Charles R. Buckalew is president of the new railroad, Morton McMichael is vice-president, and among the principal owners are Wharton Barker, Colonel B. K. Jamison and Ex-Governor Curtin.

The present connection of the new railroad is with the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, but the Pennsylvania Railroad is just across the river from Bloomsburg, and the citizens there have already subscribed a large sum toward building a bridge and making a connection with the Pennsylvania system. The Reading Railroad is also about to connect with the new road.

The country at the end of the road is wild and picturesque, and an "Echo Club" has been formed of some of those interested in the railroad and others. This club will devote itself to enjoying the fishing and hunting in the mountain gorges about the road's terminus.—Phila. Press May 26.

The transfer is not a sale of land but of timber on the stump. Col. Cochran of Williamsport is the purchaser, and he is to cut and ship 20,000,000 feet per year for 25 years, and to erect a tannery.

F. D. Dentler's spring stock of boots and shoes just coming in. Call and see them.

New Express Route to Philadelphia.

PLANS OF THE UNITED STATES COMPANY—NO CUTTING OF RATES AT PRESENT.

On May 1 the United States Express Company acquired express privileges under contract over the system of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. The company under this arrangement will put into effect on June 1, a new express service between New York and Philadelphia, thus entering as a competitor with the Adams Express Company for a large traffic which heretofore has been exclusively enjoyed by the latter company. The new express route will be made up of the New Jersey Southern, which is under the control of the Jersey Central, from New York to Bayside, on the Delaware Bay, and a steamer line from Bayside up the Delaware River to Philadelphia. The new express will leave New York at 8 p. m. and the goods will reach Philadelphia by 7 o'clock the next morning. Goods will leave Philadelphia at 8 p. m. each day and reach New York at 7 o'clock the next morning. The steamer Canonicus, with a capacity of 580 tons and capable of making sixteen miles an hour will ply between Bayside and Philadelphia to finish the water service. The express train by rail will make only three stops between New York and Bayside; namely, at Red Bank, Manchester and Bridgeton. At the last named place the freight accumulated from the branches and feeders of the New Jersey Southern road will be taken up by the regular train and carried to Bayside. By this new route the United States Express Company will be able to tap a large northern business and also the express traffic which comes over the Central of New Jersey from its line up into the Scranton region of Pennsylvania. It will furnish quick and close connections with the rich fruit districts of Southern New Jersey.

The officers of the United States Express do not profess any intention to disturb express rates if they can help it. They offer to furnish as good service at as reasonable rates as their rival offers, but it is probable that the new competition may lead to some cutting of rates subsequently, as the Adams Express Company is not likely to view the new route with satisfaction. President T. C. Platt, of the United States Express Company, says that the new route is not an experiment—it will be permanent.—N. Y. Tribune, May 22, 1888.

WANAMAKER'S.

PHILADELPHIA, Monday, May 28, 1888.

We believe there is no Black Surah Silk in the market that is so well worth the money as our 26 inch 75 cent grade. Not so good is $1 in many stores. These Surahs are made to our order from the best selected silk, dyed a fast black, and woven with great care to insure good wear.

A finer Black Surah, also 26 inches, $1. Proper weight, mellow, full of good substantial wear.

Better value in India Silks than we ever had before. Light as gossamer almost; but firm, close, even.

And these little prices for Silks come in the face of a sharp fashion drift toward them.

Wool goods for erratic weather. Light in weight and color. Warm as lovelit eyes.

Quaint, demure, captivating Challis. At the price, like money set to music, 50 and 60c.

All-wool Henriettas. Genuine Henriettas. You'll find plenty of masqueraders with a put-on smooth face. But it isn't the Henrietta face. That stays.

WANAMAKER'S.

Here's a lot, uniform colors and quality. 45 inches wide, and the price 75c. It's been $1.

Clinging Cashmeres 37½c from 50. Price rises with the quality to $1.25.

Think of a plain Challis. All the softness and delicacy of Challis without the figure beauty. Something new. In all the going colors. 65c, 75c. and $1. Ask for plain Bengaline.

La Gloria is another novelty. Albatross weave with a decided crêpy finish. And it stays crêpy while you wear it. 42 inches, $1. In all the street and evening shades and cream. Albatross 50c. We thought it cheap at 60c. So did you.

There's a daily wonder in French Sateens. Not that they come and go by the thousand, but that they can be so many, so pretty, and so different. A hint of May meadow-glories and bobolink song in every fold. 37½c.

Choice American Sateens, 12½c.

Ginghams, gay and grave, 10 to 50c.

Chipper Chintzes, 12½c.

Cool, crisp Crazies, 12½c.

Seersuckers, 5 to 12½c.

Prim Percales, 12 1-2 to 15c.

Half a dozen more of these cosy cottons, and lots at unlooked-for prices in almost every one. For instance: Scotch Surah Ginghams, 25c. from 40; Scotch Zephyr Checked Ginghams, 25c from 40.

Thrifty housewives are carrying off these under-priced goods and storing them away for next season.

Real India Striped Long Shawls; three patterns. Put together thread by thread, color by color, just as a silky-woolly flower might grow. Hand work, every bit—rice-and-water wages. The price on Saturday $40, to-day $20. But it isn't the poor weaver that loses.

Striped French-India Square Shawls—copies of the real. Never before sold at less than $10 or $12. Here are three handsome patterns that shall go at $5.

Unlaundered Hemstitched Handkerchiefs—ladies'. Here is an array of cheapness. A portion of it due to the unwashed fact. But remember all pure linen in the description of what follows:

250 dozens at $1 a dozen.

1000 dozens, the last of 9000 dozens, 108.000 pieces, one daily for nearly three centuries, with embroidered initial in the corner, assortment not quite complete, at 12½ cents each handkerchief.

1000 dozens fine plain, hemstitched, at 25 cents each.

The following are laundered:

550 dozens, printed border, at 90 cents the dozen.

1235 dozens, hemstitched, with beautiful printed borders, 12 1-2 cents each handkerchief, and 500 dozens more—same price—with colored embroidered corners. These are what traders call a job—big job.

Then, too, fancy Mourning Handkerchiefs at 12 1-2c each.

But you may pay $7.50 each for Handkerchiefs here and then buy cheap.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

THE HOMLIEST MAN IN BLOOMSBURG as well as the handsomest, and others are invited to call on any druggist and get free a trial bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the throat and lungs, a remedy that is selling entirely upon its merits and is guaranteed to cure and relieve all chronic and acute coughs, asthma, bronchitis and consumption. Price 50 cents and $1.

SOME FOOLISH PEOPLE allow a cough to run until it gets beyond the reach of medicine. They often say, "Oh, it will wear away," but in most cases it wears them away. Could they be induced to try the successful medicine called Kemp's Balsam, which we sell on a positive guarantee to cure, they would immediately see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Price 50c. and $1. Trial size free. At all druggists.

Eczema, Itchy, Scaly, Skin Tortures.

The simple application of "Swayne's Ointment," without any internal medicine, will cure any case of Tetter, Salt Rheum, Ringworm, Piles, Itch, Sores, Pimples, Eczema, all Scaly, Itchy Skin Eruptions, no matter how obstinate or long standing. It is potent, effective, and costs but a trifle May-4-'88-1y

TO PRESERVE NATURAL FLOWERS.—Dip the flowers in melted paraffine, withdrawing them quickly. The liquid should be only just hot enough to maintain its fluidity and the flowers should be dipped one at a time, held by the stocks and moved about for an instant to get rid of air bubbles. Fresh cut flowers, free from moisture, make excellent specimens in this way. If you would preserve your health and invigorate your entire system use Perrine's Pure Barley Malt Whiskey. For sale by C. QUEEN VICTORIA'S CROWN.

The crown of Queen Victoria consists of diamonds, pearls, rubies, sapphires and emeralds, set in silver and gold. Its gross weight is 39 oz. 5 dwt. troy. The number of diamonds are 3,352; pearls, 273; rubies, 9; sapphires, 17; emeralds, 11. It is an old saying—Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown. It is better to wear the crown of perfect health and peace of mind through the curative effects of Perrine's Pure Barley Malt Whiskey. For sale by C. B. Robbins, Bloomsburg, Pa.

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles.

SYMPTOMS—Moisture; intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching. If allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and ulcerate, becoming very sore. Swayne's Ointment stops the itching and bleeding, heals ulceration, and in most cases removes the tumors. At druggists, or by mail, for 50 cents. Dr. Swayne & Son, Philadelphia. may-4 1y.

Constipation

Demands prompt treatment. The results of neglect may be serious. Avoid all harsh and drastic purgatives, the tendency of which is to weaken the bowels. The best remedy is Ayer's Pills. Being purely vegetable, their action is prompt and their effect always beneficial. They are an admirable Liver and After-dinner pill, and everywhere endorsed by the profession.

"Ayer's Pills are highly and universally spoken of by the people about here. I make daily use of them in my practice."—Dr. I. E. Fowler, Bridgeport, Conn.

"I can recommend Ayer's Pills above all others, having long proved their value as a cathartic for myself and family."—J. T. Hess, Leithsville, Pa.

"For several years Ayer's Pills have been used in my family. We find them an for constipation and indigestion, and are never without them in the house."—Moses Grenier, Lowell, Mass.

"I have used Ayer's Pills, for liver troubles and indigestion, during many years, and have always found them prompt and efficient in their action."—L. N. Smith, Utica, N. Y.

"I suffered from constipation which assumed such an obstinate form that I feared it would cause a stoppage of the bowels. Two boxes of Ayer's Pills effected a complete cure."—D. Burke, Saco, Me.

"I have used Ayer's Pills for the past thirty years and consider them an invaluable family medicine. I know of no better remedy for liver troubles, and have always found them a prompt cure for dyspepsia."—James Quinn, 90 Middle st., Hartford, Conn.

"Having been troubled with costiveness, which seems inevitable with persons of sedentary habits, I have tried Ayer's Pills, hoping for relief. I am glad to say that they have served me better than any other medicine. I arrive at this conclusion only after a faithful trial of their merits."—Samuel T. Jones, Oak st., Boston, Mass.

CUBAN SUGAR PLANTATIONS.

Dreary Reaches of Cane, Tall Chimneys and Hordes of Ignorant Blacks.

All large Cuban sugar plantations are alike. Having seen one you have seen all, so far as external affairs are concerned. It is often the case that their owners, or lessees, are people of culture and refinement, and with a host of friends and visitors about them live here in a style of affluent elegance for which we can now find no comparison in our own country. There was a time when we could. But the dreary reaches of cane; the long, snake like tramways and roads for hauling the emerald loads of treasure to the mill; the white tree fringed avenue leading from the highway to the batey or square upon which all the structures are faced with startling regularity; the live hedges of Spanish bayonet or savage prickly pear and dirk pointed heniquen that mark the confines, or divisions, of the estate; the tall and lonesome chimneys of the boiling houses; the glaring white buildings from villa to "the quarters" that look forever so ghostly lonesome and torture your eyes in the pitiless sun; the unsavory smell of the cane juice in all stages of conversion into sugar, and the never ending hordes of ignorant blacks sweltering and yelling like demons in their hard labor are one and the same from one end of Cuba to another.

The plantation is divided into numberless squares or patches, around and from which, leading direct to the mill, are guarda rayos or roads, which are frequently tramways with iron bound wooden rails, where one mule can easily amble along with 10,000 pounds of the glistening cane on cars. Frequently these guarda rayos radiate in all directions from the batey or square like the spokes of a wheel. It is one steady stream of cane day and night to the ponderous rolls which squeeze it dry as a bone, whether it comes fast or slowly, endwise or sidewise, and leave the rag like, crushed and flattened stalk in what is called bagazo. This, dried in the sun, provides the entire fuel of the never idle boilers. The screaming and whining of these crushing rolls is one of the most lugubrious noises one ever listened to. Then there are the tremendous engines and boilers kept endlessly ranging by the burning bagazo; countless pipes and fixtures and the huge nickel plated "vacuum pans," imbedded in polished wood, where the cane juice, seemingly quiet, is kept at a fearful heat by steam; the great vats and reservoirs, and, finally, the swirling, whirling centrifugal machines that, inside of five minutes, take the black, nasty, mushy mess and beat it until it is as white as snow and ready for market. From 2,000,000 to 5,000,000 pounds are frequently made annually upon each of these plantations, beside the enormous yield of molasses, which is an important factor in the crop.

The fact is, these great sugar estates are now run on so gigantic a scale that they are little less than huge factories, with all the hard characteristics of factory life about them, the home or rural idea being wholly eliminated. The place is like a factory village, employing and caring for from 1,000 to 2,000 souls. The discipline is severe; the system perfect. The hands are invariably negroes. They work in watches, or relays, day and night, precisely as they do at your rolling mills. The males occupy quarters walled and barricaded from the women, and there is no more chance for intercourse or frolic than in the American penitentiary. Those married have separate quarters.—Edgar L. Wakeman's Letter.

The "Larrikins" of Australia.

The governor, instead of importing a decent class of women, advised the home authorities to send out a shipload of the worst characters, and thus it was that a transport containing 520 women—the refuse of London alleys—was dispatched to Australia. These viragos were called the "red rovers." They intermarried with the male convicts, and their progeny, as might be supposed, turned out of the criminal order. Their descendants of the fourth generation are, with few exceptions, a curse to the colony. They fill the jails, and when at liberty congregate at street corners, expectorate on the footpaths and insult women and children. They are called "larrikins."

The "larrikin" is generally a thin, repulsive looking youth of 19 or 20. He is never known to work, nor in fact to do anything but steal and insult old men and young nurse girls; yet he manages to get enough to eat and to dress well at all times. He has his clothes made of black cloth, and occasionally sports a velveteen waistcoat. This is cut very low in front, the better to display a frilled shirt and small stand up collar, with tasseled necktie. His boots—sometimes let in with red morocco—have two-inch heels, and as the proud possessor swaggers up the street or "holds the post up," he affects a devil-may-care sort of manner as indicative of his character. So much for the "larrikin."—Australia Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.

Where Good Sponges Are Found.

"The best sponge of commerce," said a dealer, in speaking to a reporter, "is found in the Mediterranean, and is known as Turkey or Smyrna sponge. This is obtained by divers. Bahama or West India sponge is coarser, and is sold at a much less price. Much sponge is gathered off the coast of southern Florida."

"How are they gathered?"

"Sponges, when seen on the bottom attached to the rock, look like a big black bunch. They are pulled off their natural beds by forked hooks, which are run down under the sponge, which is formed like the head of a cabbage, and the roots pulled from the rocks. When brought to the surface it is a mass of soft, glutinous stuff, which to the touch feels like soap or thick jelly. When a small boatload is obtained they are taken to the shore, where a crawl is built in which they are placed to die, so that the jelly substance will readily separate from the firm fiber of the sponge. These crawls are built by sticking pieces of brush into the sand out of the water large enough to contain the catch. It takes from five to six days for the insect to die, when the sponges are beaten with small sticks, and the black glutinous substance falls off, leaving the sponge, after a thorough washing, ready for market.—New York Mail and Express.

One of Egypt's Industries.

One of the oldest industries in Egypt is artificial egg hatching, principally engaged in by Copts. There are said to be 700 establishments of this nature in the country, and the production of chickens from the ovens has been estimated at from 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 annually. The season for incubating lasts through three months of the early summer. The country people bring eggs to the proprietors of the "farroogs," and give two good eggs for every newly hatched chick.—Chicago Times.

Chicken Cholera for Rabbits.

M. Pasteur's plan of exterminating rabbits has been tried in a field near Rheims, and is said to have succeeded. The field is walled in and was full of burrows. The gun and the ferret had been vainly tried. M. Loir, nephew of M. Pasteur, went down and poured on a truss of hay some broth full of the microbes of chicken cholera. The next day nineteen dead rabbits were found, and two days later twelve more. In some of the burrows were discovered families of dead rabbits, and not one living rabbit has since been seen.—London Times.

Inherited Diseases.

No fact of nature is more pregnant with awful meaning than the fact of the inheritance of disease.

Modern science, which has illuminated so many dark corners of nature, has shed a new light on the ominous words of the Scriptures, "The sins of the fathers, shall be visited upon the children unto the third and fourth generation." Fifty per cent. of cases of consumption, cancer and scrofula, run in families through inheritance. Insanity is hereditary in a marked degree, but, fortunately, like many other hereditary diseases, tends to wear itself out, the stock becoming extinct. A distinguished scientist truly says: "No organ or texture of the body is exempt from the chance of being the subject of hereditary disease." Probably more chronic diseases, which permanently modify the structure and functions of the body, are more or less liable to be inherited. The important and far-reaching practical deductions from such facts—are obvious to reflecting minds, and the best means for preventing or curing these diseases is a subject of intense interest to all. Fortunately nature has provided a remedy, which experience has attested as infallible, and the remedy is the world-famous Swift's Specific, a pure vegetable compound—nature's antidote for all blood poisons. To the afflicted it is a blessing of inestimable value. An interesting treatise on "Blood and Skin Diseases" will be mailed free by addressing Choosing a Husband.

Husbands are not made to order; they just grow. To get a good one you have to know him when you see him. He may not look like the man your fancy painted, yet you will recognize in him the qualities that go to make up the reliable, enterprising, amiable man. As a rule women are not possessed of acute, business minds and are not as observant as they might be. One after another they will fall into the same open trap, just as though they were blindfolded or were impelled by some uncontrollable force. The majority of them seem to think they must marry, and all that is necessary is to find a man that is good looking or rich. The average girl first takes a fancy to a pretty man, and thinks and dreams of his lovely hair, charming eyes, elegant dress, divine moustache and dove-like voice. She declares that he is to sweet for anything. This fever passes off in time, but too often it leaves a perverted taste. A dandy figure, swell manners, and clattering tongue are apt to even out weighs a good heart, industrious habits and moral worth. Even after marriage visions of the early ideal rise up to disturb the serenity and tranquility of the domestic scene. Better such an ideal had never been formed.—Pittsburgh Commercial.

The "Canada Thistle."

Some years ago the legislature passed a law compelling land-owners under stipulated penalty to destroy the Canada thistle, by cutting or mowing, before seeding. The law is a vain one and useless, as the prescribed mode neither destroys nor prevents the spreading of this prickly pest. The root forms a complete network at a certain depth under the surface of the soil, pushing its fibers in every possible direction, reaching farther and farther from the central point habitually enlarging its circumference, notwithstanding the destruction of the surface stems. From all points of the network of connected roots springs up a multitude of thistles of luxurious growth in rich soil, choking out all other crops, rendering that portion of soil comparatively worthless. Were one to pull up all the stems, the roots would break and not affect the parent network, and in due time another crop of thistles would make its appearance. And this process could be repeated indefinitely. A surer mode for the destruction of the Canada thistle, is for the legislature to offer a bounty for every pound of Canada thistle roots that might be taken from the beds of thistle patches, under stipulated, regulations, providing for such bounties as in other cases where provisions for bounties is made, for birds and animals of prey. We would regard such a law a wise measure, and those not otherwise employed would soon exterminate the Canada thistle. And it ought to go. Those of Columbia County, who succeed in capturing the legislative prize, could render the agricultural community no better service than to give this subject their thoughtful consideration.

Contagiousness of Human Emotions.

Every day's experience may supply fresh illustrations of the immense influence of contagion in the development of all human emotions. Nor is it by any means to be set down as a weakness peculiar to or characteristic of a feeble mind, to be blindly susceptible of such contagion. Even the strongest wills are bent and warped by the winds of other men's passions, persistently blowing in given directions. Original minds, gifted with what the French call l'esprit prime sautier, are perhaps, indeed, affected rather more than less than commonplace people by the emotions of those around them, because their larger natures are more open to the sympathetic shock. Like ships with every sail set, they are caught by every breeze. It is a question of degree how much each man receives of influence from his neighbors.

Moreover, be it carefully noted, it is only by contagion, and not by any kind of authority or command, that emotions can be communicated. It is a matter of common observation that any effort to direct the emotions to order has a tendency to produce the opposite effect to the one intended. To challenge a man to be brave is to make him nervous; to bid him admire a person or a work of art is to suggest to him to be critical; to command a young man or woman to love the elect of their parents is to chill any nascent inclination in the desired direction, and to make it a duty for Montagus to hate Capulets is to start the loves of Romeo and Juliet. We must give the feeling we desire. We cannot possibly impose it.—Fortnightly Review.

One Man's Morning Hour.

I rise between 7 and 8 a. m. usually, and at once spread the bedclothes over the foot of the bed to let fresh air sweeten the sheets and destroy all effluvia. I then throw off my night dress, go to the washing bowl, wash my hands with soap, and then swill my face, ears and neck with water only. I rarely use soap to my face. Since leaving it off I find that my face is less covered with scurf. I then dip my hands in the water and rub my arms, chest, body and limbs with the wet hands. While still wet I dry my face, ears and neck, and then give my body a vigorous rubbing with the towel, and so get into a glow.

My head gets washed only every three weeks, as I find too much soap causes scurf in the head, bleaches the hair, and makes it brittle. I use a metal comb and brush, and use them just enough to make the hair assume a civilized form, as too much brushing pulls out the hair and weakens the scalp. Occasionally I go in for a little mild exercise before dressing, such as throwing my arms about, or stooping in various ways to exercise the muscles. When dressed, I go out for half an hour's walk before breakfast, no matter how cold, wet or foggy. I come in warm, hungry and bright. I take no food nor drink before going out.—T. R. Allison in London Times and Echo.

A Lecturer's Presence of Mind.

Of E. O. Wolcott, of Denver, it is told that during his college days at Yale he took the place one night of a lecturer with stereopticon views in one of the New Haven churches. The pictures were chiefly of Arctic scenes, and he talked as though he had lived at the North pole for years. While he was describing a glacier some one in the audience asked: "How fast does it move?" He hadn't the slightest idea, but without hesitation he replied: "A mile a minute!" "Why, Ed. Wolcott!" whispered a professor at his side, "it only moves an inch in ten years!" Forthwith the young lecturer asked to have the question repeated, and then said: "Oh, the glacier! It moves about an inch in ten years. I thought the gentleman asked me about the velocity of the wind in the Arctic regions!"—Chicago Mail.

a man for groaning when he has Rheumatism or Neuralgia. The pain is simply awful. No torture in the ancient times was more painful than these twin diseases. But—oughtn't a man to be blamed if, having Rheumatism or Neuralgia, he wont use Ath-lo-pho-ros, when it has cured thousands who have suffered in the same way? It has cured hundreds after physicians have pronounced them incurable.

"The skill of five physicians could not cure me of Rheumatism which had settled in the hips, neck and shoulders. So intense was the pain that sleep was almost impossible. The first dose of Athlophoros gave me relief, and the third enabled me to sleep for four and a half hours without waking. I continued its use, and am now well."

WHAT AILS YOU?

Do you feel dull, languid, low-spirited, lifeless, and indescribably miserable, both physically and mentally; experience a sense of fullness or bloating after eating, or of "goneness," or emptiness of stomach in the morning, tongue coated, bitter or bad taste in mouth, irregular appetite, dizziness, frequent headaches, blurred eyesight, "floating specks" before the eyes, nervous prostration or exhaustion, irritability of temper, hot flushes, alternating with chilly sensations, sharp, biting, transient pains here and there, cold feet, drowsiness after meals, wakefulness, or disturbed and unrefreshing sleep, constant, indescribable feeling of dread, or of impending calamity?

If you have all, or any considerable number of these symptoms, you are suffering from that most common of American maladies—Bilious Dyspepsia, or Torpid Liver, associated with Dyspepsia, or Indigestion. The more complicated your disease has become, the greater the number and diversity of symptoms. No matter what stage it has reached, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will subdue it, if taken according to directions for a reasonable length of time. If not cured, complications multiply and Consumption of the Lungs, Skin Diseases, Heart Disease, Rheumatism, Kidney Disease, or other grave maladies are quite liable to set in and, sooner or later, induce a fatal termination.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery acts powerfully upon the Liver, and through that great blood-purifying organ, cleanses the system of all blood-taints and impurities, from whatever cause arising. It is equally efficacious in acting upon the Kidneys, and other excretory organs, cleansing, strengthening, and healing their diseases. As an appetizing, restorative tonic, it promotes digestion and nutrition, thereby building up both flesh and strength. In malarial districts, this wonderful medicine has gained great celebrity in curing Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, Dumb Ague, and kindred diseases.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

CURES ALL HUMORS,

from a common Blotch, or Eruption, to the worst Scrofula. Salt-rheum, "Fever-sores," Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all diseases caused by bad blood are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine. Great Eating Ulcers rapidly heal under its benign influence. Especially has it manifested its potency in curing Tetter, Eczema, Erysipelas, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, Hip-joint Disease, "White Swellings," Goitre, or Thick Neck, and Enlarged Glands. Send ten cents in stamps for a large Treatise, with colored plates, on Skin Diseases, or the same amount for a Treatise on Scrofulous Affections.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."

Thoroughly cleanse it by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, vital strength and bodily health will be established.

CONSUMPTION,

which is Scrofula of the Lungs, is arrested and cured by this remedy, if taken in the earlier stages of the disease. From its marvelous power over this terribly fatal disease, when first offering this now world-famed remedy to the public, Dr. Pierce thought seriously of calling it his "CONSUMPTION CURE," but abandoned that name as too restrictive for a medicine which, from its wonderful combination of tonic, or strengthening, alterative, or blood-cleansing, anti-bilious, pectoral, and nutritive properties, is unequaled, not only as a remedy for Consumption, but for all Chronic Diseases of the Liver, Blood, and Lungs.

For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Chronic Nasal Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, Severe Coughs, and kindred affections, it is an efficient remedy.

JESUS ON THE CROSS.

LESSON X, SECOND QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, JUNE 3.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. xxvii, 33-50. Golden Text, Phil. ii, 8—Memorize Verses 35-37—Comment by Rev. H. S. Hoffman.

[Condensed from Lesson Helper Quarterly, by permission of H. S. Hoffman, Philadelphia, publisher.]

Notes.—V. 33. Golgotha, usual place of execution. The Latin word calvary, its equivalent, also means skull, from its conical shape. V. 34. Vinegar, a bitter, stupefying drink to deaden the feeling of pain. V. 38. Thieves, robbers. V. 39. Wagging their heads, in token of derision and insult, Job xvi, 4; Ps. cix, 25. V. 45. Darkness, not an eclipse, but a preternatural gloom that indicated the awfully wicked deed done. V. 46. Eli, or "Eloi," Ps. xxii, 1; Isa. liii, 10; lxiii, 3-5. V. 50. Cried again, "it is finished," John xix, 30. Loud voice, a shout of victory, Luke xxiii, 46.

V. 33. The Via Dolorosa or Via Crucis, or the Lord's road from the Pretorium to Golgotha, which required on this occasion a half an hour to pass, was marked at every step by the blood which oozed from the freshly scourged body of Jesus. The natural pain from the scourging was augmented by the heavy cross which he, like all the condemned, had to bear. Exhausted by long watching, by a troubled night such as no man ever since or before passed through and now by the most intense bodily suffering, he at last fainted and sunk under the burden of his cross, so that Simon, the Cyrean, was seized to help him carry it.

Golgotha, or Calvary, an elevated place somewhat resembling in shape a human skull, was then without the city limits, for capital punishment was not permitted within the walls. This was also a Roman law. He was cast out of the city of God, that we might obtain entrance into the heavenly Jerusalem. Golgotha, once the most dreadful and horrible place on the earth, had become through Christ the mountain of blessings. Christ can transform the vilest sinner into a shining saint.

V. 34. There was offered our Lord the usual potion given to such as were crucified to stupefy the senses, but he was unwilling to dull them to pain or to dim his communion with God. He came to taste our death, and he wished no intoxicant to blunt that taste.

V. 35. The criminal having arrived at the place of execution, was required to be stripped of all his clothes, and then was laid upon the cross with his arms stretched out upon its cross beams. Then by several strong and well directed blows of a mallet or hammer huge nails were driven through the hands and feet, fastening the body to the instrument of torture. Then the cross was lifted and let fall violently into the hole that had been previously dug in the earth. It was so cruel and shameful a mode of punishment as never to have been meted out to Roman citizens, but reserved only for slaves, rebels and the most abandoned and worthless characters.

It was at the same time the most painful form of death. (1.) The position of the arms and body was most unnatural. The least motion caused the most intense smart. (2.) The nails were driven through clusters of the most sensitive nerves and tendons of the hands and feet, causing the most exquisite anguish. (3.) The exposure of so many wounds to the air and the heat of midday brought on violent inflammation. (4.) The free circulation of the blood was prevented. More blood was carried out by the arteries than could be returned by the veins. This caused a determination of blood to the brain, producing inexpressible agony. (5.) Death was not immediate. The pain increased and some had been known to languish thus till the seventh day. Our Saviour's sufferings soon terminated, because of the intense suffering of mind and body which preceded his crucifixion. Only the inquisition, with its fiendish inventions, has been able to equal this torturing death. Such was the death Jesus died, to make atonement for our sins. All that he suffered was for us. What a price was paid for us. If he died for us, what ought we not be willing to do for him!

V. 36. The soldiers now watched him that none should remove the body. Sometimes this watch lasted several days.

V. 37. It was customary to attach to the cross the crime and name of the crucified person. Pilate wrote or caused to have written the crime for which Jesus was executed. Schaff.

V. 38. To add an additional shame to Christ's crucifixion he was associated and executed with malefactors.

V. 39, 40. "His crucified condition was in such contrast with the title over him and with his own words, as to excite the mirth of the crowd." Peloubet. They perverted words which Jesus used. But it is remarkable that what was then taking place resulted in the destruction of the temple. They derided his claims and jested at his agonies. He could not come down from the cross because he was the Messiah. Had he come down he would not have been the anointed Christ. He who seeks first to save himself is never able to save others.

V. 41, 42. The offense for which Jesus was crucified was that he claimed to be divine, that he was the Messiah, that he was the Son of God. All this he was, and by numerous miracles proved that he was more than a mere man. The mass of the people were eager to hail him as the long expected Messiah. But because his kingdom was not temporal, but spiritual, they rejected him. Unwittingly the chief priests, scribes and elders, who reviled and mocked, bore testimony to his having (1) "saved others," (2) "trusted God," and (3) said "I am the Son of God."

V. 44. Up to this time both of the thieves upbraided Christ, but a wondrous and blessed change was now wrought in one. God's Spirit can turn blasphemy into prayer and scoffers into saints.

V. 45. The darkness was preternatural, and was not caused by an eclipse of the sun, for the moon was full, making an eclipse impossible.

V. 46. We seem to have in this exclamation an intensified renewal of the agony of Gethsemane. The climax of his substitutionary sufferings is now reached. In his terrible anguish it seemed to the human nature of Christ that he was deserted by God. But he was really not forsaken. He could still say "My God." "Even if God hides his face from us we need not despair; the sun of his grace is still behind the clouds of judgment." Schaff.

V. 47, 48. His enemies indulge in a godless pun upon the word "Eli" to deride him and his Messianic claims. At this time Jesus uttered his fifth word from the cross, "I thirst" (John xix, 28), and in answer to it the sour wine in a sponge was lifted to his lips. This was a weak wine, without the ingredients first offered him (v. 34) and could not intoxicate. Therefore he drank it.

V. 50. The ransom is fully paid. The atonement is perfected. The old dispensation is ended. His suffering life is over. The curse is removed. And hence with a loud voice Jesus said, tetelesta, "It is finished," John xix, 30.

A. E. SMITH, ESQ.

has been for 49 years road master on the Boston & Maine system and is now residing at Great Falls, N. H. He says trackmen, brakeman, firemen, engineers and conductors, as well as baggage masters and expressmen, are subject to kidney diseases above all others. All, therefore, will be interested in the statement of his experience. "I have used Brown's Sarsaparilla for kidney and liver troubles, and can truly say it has done more for me than all the doctors I ever employed, and I have had occasion to require the services of the best physicians in the State. My wife also has been greatly benefited by its use.—A. E. SMITH, Road Master, B. & M. R. R.

The kidneys have been severely taxed all winter, as the pores of the skin have been closed, but now as warm weather has come, they need some aid. May be you have that pain across the back; that tired feeling; those drawing down pains. If so you can gain immediate relief by following the example of Mr. Smith and his wife, and use that never failing and grand corrector for the kidneys, liver and blood,
